 | News

A Feature Wall at this Hong Kong Bakery Displays 1,500 Actual Bread Loaves

 February 29, 2016
By Mark McMenamin

Back to Article

 A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography by Louis Chan/PlotCreative Interior Design.

 A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography by Louis Chan/PlotCreative Interior Design.

 A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography by Louis Chan/PlotCreative Interior Design.

 ONLINE EXCLUSIVE. A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography courtesy of PlotCreative Interior Design.

 ONLINE EXCLUSIVE. A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography courtesy of PlotCreative Interior Design.

 ONLINE EXCLUSIVE. A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography courtesy of PlotCreative Interior Design.

 ONLINE EXCLUSIVE. A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography courtesy of PlotCreative Interior Design.

 ONLINE EXCLUSIVE. A feature wall of real bread defines a Hong Kong bakery called Dreams. The Bread, designed by PlotCreative Interior Design. Photography courtesy of PlotCreative Interior Design.